CasaMagna Marriott Cancun Resort invites Mumbai-based chef to curate new Indian-inspired menu and food festival

CANCUN, MEXICO – October 2014 – CasaMagna Marriott Cancun Resort will add a sweet, spicy and savory dash of international flair with its upcoming Festival de la Comida Hindú, an Indian Food Festival to be held this November at the resort’s signature Asian restaurant, Sasi Thai.

Curated by Indian specialty guest chef Shabbir Khan of the Renaissance Mumbai Convention Centre, the festival will celebrate the launch of the resort’s new Indian cuisine catering menu. The two-week celebration will take place November 15-30, offering guests and locals the opportunity to savor daily specials of classic and modern dishes, many prepared in CasaMagna Cancun’s brand new tandoori oven.

“We’re thrilled to host Chef Khan next month to collaborate on this very exciting culinary launch,” said Christopher Calabrese, Vice President and General Manager at CasaMagna Marriott Cancun. “From group meetings to themed weddings, we strive to create the utmost authentic experiences for our guests, so this specially curated Indian menu is a fascinating addition to our offerings.”

A member of the Renaissance culinary team for more than a decade, Chef Khan has mastered Punjabi, Mughali, Maharashtrian and Rejasthani regional styles of Indian cuisine, showcasing his culinary expertise at the Awadhi, Lucknowi and Patiala local food festivals in India. During his visit to CasaMagna Cancun, Chef Khan will work closely with resort staff eager to master authentic Indian ingredients and cooking methods to be applied towards Indian weddings and celebrations hosted on property and next door at sister property JW Marriott Cancun Resort & Spa.

The Indian Food Festival kicks off November 13 with an early evening cocktail party at Sasi Thai that will feature themed music and Indian food and beverage specialties.
